

Narration - “Around and Around”

And fly away they did, just as Mr. and Mrs. Darling were arriving home. Out the window they went, above the treetops and rooftops, then over the river, higher and higher until all earth seemed like a memory.

Peter Pan was leading the way, and the children enjoyed every minute of the journey. Eventually, a dim, blue island appeared in the distance, surrounded by a soft blue mist, and it called to the children as though it were a paradise.

But under the dark trees, in the deep of the forest, the island held some surprises of its own. The Lost Boys were searching for Peter Pan, the Pirates were out looking for the Lost Boys, the Indians were tracking the footsteps of the Pirates, and wild animals were following the Indians.

And one wild animal, a crocodile who had swallowed a clock, was stalking the Pirate leader, Captain Hook. Around and around the island they all went: Lost Boys, Indians, Pirates, and animals! Around... and around... and around.
