

Narration - “That’s the Way a Mother Loves”

Peter Pan, the story of the boy who never grew up, was written by Scottish author James M. Barrie, and published in 1904. In the story, Peter and Tinker Bell visit the nursery of the three Darling children—Wendy, John, and Michael—and take them on an adventure. In this excerpt, Peter Pan, having lost his shadow on a previous visit to the Darling nursery, is trying to glue his shadow back on when Wendy awakens. We pick up the dialogue in the middle of their conversation.
